From the Organ Library ...

BUY YOUR MUSIC FROM THE AGO ORGAN LIBRARY!

The AGO Organ Library, housed in the School of Theology at Boston University, has lots of used organ music for sale at relatively inexpensive prices. At the moment our supply is large, and we are offering discounts on Bach Scores, especially if you are a student. The Library is physically open only on Sunday afternoons, but it's much easier (for you and for us) if you shop online anyway, so visit our website www.organlibrary.org and click on "Music Sales" in the menu along the right side of the picture. There are various categories to look in (individual composers; collections; method books; books about organ music.) Then send us an email with your order (don't try to call on the phone); We'll email you back with the total and the shipping cost. We're not fast (our staff is very tiny, often only 1 person) but we are cheap, very knowledgeable about the repertoire, and only charge necessary shipping costs. Our email is orglib@bu.edu

Happy music hunting,

Carl Klein, DMA

About the website calendar...

I occasionally get emails asking why an event isn't on the calendar on the website. The answer is that the calendar is designed to be self-service. If you want something to appear on the calendar, go to <http://musi-cal.us> and click on "submit event and fill in the blanks. It should appear within twenty-four hours. If you have any question or need help, email me at the address below.
